Former President Giovanni Gron-chi, the first man on Mr. Saragat's list of visitors, said after a talk with Mr. Saragat at the presiden-tial palace: "The situation is very serious and it is to be wished, for the sake of our country, that every one feels the responsibility for it."

Meanwhile the secretary-general of the country's biggest labor group, the Communist-run General Confederation of Labor (OGIL) called on organized labor to exert vigorous and prolonged "general pressure" on the government for social reforms.

Acceptance of this by Socialist and Catholic labor federations could lead to more nationwide strikes during a period of extreme political instability. Three such strikes have been held in a year. Mr. Saragat also conferred with Sandro Pertini, president of the Chamber of Deputies, and Amintore

Doctors' Fees Costs Reported Up

Under Medicare WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (UPI).— A Senate staff study, sharply criti-cal of the fees doctors collect for treating Medicare patients, says the government's health insurance program has driven up medical costs for all Americans.

Hits Rising

Its chief proposal for overcoming the problem—a fixed schedule of fees participating doctors can receive for the Medicare practicestruck a sensitive nerve. The medical profession has always opposed government-set fees. But the 323-page report, issued by the Senate Finance Committee yesterday after 18 months of study, says only drastic reform and higher taxes can save the hospital insurance trust fund from bankruptcy. In addition to overcharges by doctors, it attacks sloppy manage-ment by the Social Security Administration and "erratic, inefficient, costly" performance by state insurance carriers, in most cases Blue Shield agencies, which have served as middlemen between doctors and the government.

The report says doctors have been receiving fees three or four times larger from Medicare than they are permitted to charge for the same services under Blue Shield or Blue Cross.

Medicare provides hospital insurance for Americans over 65, paid for through Social Security taxes, in other, 22, had taken several doses not a stooge," said Mr. Yablonski, In addition, 19.3 million pay $4 a month for voluntary insurance to the infent's birth and the saw the need for reform, now he's covering 80 percent of their doctors' mother nine months prior to con- dead. High Insurance Helps Make Boston Costliest City in U.S. for Motorists

BOSTON, Feb. 9 (UPI).—It costs more to own and operate a car in Boston than any other city in the United States, occording the Automobile Legal Association. Primarily because of higher insurance rates, Boston motorists pay almost a third more than drivers in Portland. Ore., the cheapest place to run a car, the association said. It said a Boston motorist who uses bis car for husiness and drives 10,000 miles a year pays 20,92 cents a mile to the Portland driver's 15.98 cents.

Women's Liberation: A Fight for Total Equality

By Marylin Bender

NEW YORK (NYT).-It's rather disconcerting for a middle-aged, securely middleclass American businessman or professional to be confronted at a cocktail party by a blithe young creature who calls him. in a well-modulated, girlish voice, an oppressor, a male chauvinist and a sexist. It's been happening lately.

It's equally shocking for college boys, post-graduate white radicals and black militarts to be presented by their sisters (blood and soul), wives, mothers and coworkers with unnego-tiable demands for liberation. That's been happening increasingly, too.

Liberated from what?, they wonder, Being American males, regardless of social, economic, political or racial bue, have they not been raised to believe that the American Woman is the most privileged, pampered. and domineering of the species? Don't many American women agree?

If perplexity is the mood of the moment, enlightenment is soon at hand. In the immediate and foreseeable future, America will be assaulted with the subject of women's liberation at the newsstand and at the office, in the bookstore and in the living room.

Current Topic

"It comes up in almost every social meeting. It's a current topic of conversation," says Pamela Roby, a sociologist who, at 27 and happily numerried, is one of countless sympathizers with, although not quite members of the women's liberation

Women's liberation is a catchall label for the second phase of the movement for total equality for slightly more than half of the United States population. In the first phase, won the vote. Now they're going for broke.

An eclectic movement, women's liberation spans both reform and revolution, and draws practicing attorneys who wear hats to court as well as long-haired poets in bell-bottoms who forswear cosmetics and undergarments.

On the matter of wedding rings and married names, the movement is of several minds. Ruthann Miller, who is a candidate for state controller on the Socialist Workers Party slate, uses her husband's name because she dislikes her maiden name, McGivney, more, But she adamantly refuses the prefix "Mrs." and puts her wedding ring on her right band.

Mrs. Irwin Schwartz, nee Barbara Joan Levinson, an an-thropologist who taught for four years at the New School as Barbara Schwartz, recently hecame Barbara Joans-Schwartz. She is giving a women's liberation workshop this semester.

Other charter members of the movement like Robin Morgan, a poet who is married to a poet, Kenneth Pitchford, and Kate Millett, the Barnard philosophy instructor who is the wife of Fumio Yoshimura. a sculptor, use their maiden names professionally and without fanfare.

The Groups

Women's liberation embraces such antithetical groups as NOW (the Netional Organization for Women formed in 1966 by Betty Friedan, author of Tha Feminine Mystique"), which has men on its board of directors and strives for the enforcement of Title 7 of the 1964 Civil Rights Act (forbidding sex discrimination in employment), and the Feminists an unknown quantity of separatists who seek female reparations on the style of veteran's preferences. Ti-Grace Atkinson, a founding Feminist, has given up dating or even appearing in public with men except, of course, on

In be-tween NOW and the Feminists are a proliferating number of groups, cells and brigades that tend to use the vocabulary and many of the techniques of radi-cal politics and black nation-

Among the radical women's groups, most of whom new ex-clude men from their meetings and their strategy, are the Radical Feminists; WITCH (The-Women's International Terrorist Conspiracy from Heil). The Older Women's Liberation (meaning over 36), Local 55, which accepts high school girls as well as grandmothers; tha Stanton Anthony Brigade, which sees the enemy as man but the cause of oppression as psychological as well as economic, and Redstockings, which asserted in its July manifesto that all other forms of exploitstion, like racism and imperialism, are extensions of male supremacy.

Redstockings takes credit for the "consciousness-raising" technique, a kind of political encounter session in which women meet regularly to share their thoughts and experiences of male oppression. Most of us had been to the shrink be fore joining women's lib," said Susan Bell, a writer who is a member of both Redstockings and NOW. Whether it is called consciousness-raising or rap ses-sion, it is a dead-serious version of the age-old kaffeeklatsch. "Wo have to have talk sessions because we're confused." said The goals include repeal of abortion laws, free childcare centers, equal employment opportunities, liberation

'from archaic traditions of marriage.'

Laurie Stein, who belongs to the embryonic Barnard Women's Liberation. Miss Stein, a senior, was impelled toward the movement by a classmate's "traumatic experience with abortion" and by her own feelings of intimidation in a class with Columbia boys.

One group under the predom-inantly white women's liberation umbrells, the SNCC Black Women's Liberation Committee, sets itself the special task of helping black men recover their masculinity and of restructuring the black family away from its ma-triarchal tradition. Why Liberation?

Regardless of differences, the movement can supply a few clear and concerted replies to the question, what do they want to be liberated from?
The first is abortion law. Repeal of abortion laws has the potential of such wide support that it is expected to gather been dubbed the "woman's case" because it has 300 plaintiffs and five women attorneys claiming that abortion laws deny a woman's right to privacy and her right to decide whether or not to bear children. Control of her own body is women's liberation's most broadly based tenet.

"It's e beautiful thing to have a child, if that's what you want," says Ruthann Miller, who plans to carry her 16-month-old daughter, Jennifer, with her in an ebortion repeal parade planned for March 21. "But neither should you have one if you don't want to." she added.

Free child-care centers are the next most popular cause. They would liberate women to pursue their own interests and to earn

"It's tied to the need of most women to work. The country and the legislators are waking up. But it's not just a welfarc issue. It should be a public right for women of all classes," says Muriel Fox, a public relations executive and director of NOW, which believes child-cars cen-ters should be state run and federally subsidized.

Ruthann Miller, a Trotskyite

Communist, is in favor of having large corporations support the centers, too. Most women's lib groups insist on parental control of the centers.

Business Discrimination

Discrimination against women in business, the professions and in the university is the next most burning issue. The move-ment is loaded with angry writ-ers like Elizabeth Fisher, who started a feminist literary magazine, "Aphra," architects like Lucinda Cisler, who insists that "the gentlemanly profession" discriminates against women in architecture school and on the construction site, and lawyers like Diane Schulder, who gave the first course on women's liberation and the law at New

The Comeback of a Ballerina

By Naomi Barry

PARIS.—Budget permitting. the Opéra-Comique may soon have a ballet director. The rumor in Paris is that, if the post comes into being, it will go to Janino Charrat.

A dancer and choreographer, Janine Charrat, now in her mid-40s, is the ballerina whose costume cangbt fire in December, 1961, during the filming of a ballet in the French television studios. She bent over a candelabra being used as a stage prop and her dress went up in flames, burning about 70 percent of her body. Her face, neck and legs were spared.

After four months in the hospital—she was down to 70 pounds-she was back at the bar practicing her plies to rebuild the wasted muscles. "The doctors were astonished. but after all nothing was broken," she said in her Boulogne apartment, "But then I've always had marvelous luck or terrible luck. "As soon as I was able to walk, I had one of my greatest strokes of luck. The Geneva opera called me to direct their ballet company. I stayed for a year and a half. It was wonderful for my morale, I created one of my best ballets, "Tristan and Isolde." She danced Isolde and half the audience came from Paris to see the miracle of Charrat. Today, when dancing before the public she always wears a long-sleeved costume or classical leotard to hide the scars on her arms which reach down to her wrists. Child Prodigy

Chartat was a celebrity as child. Jean Benoit-Lévy saw her dance in a private salon and chose her to play "le petit rat" in the celebrated pre-war film "Ballerina." Opera in Bringing Down the House

By Henry Pleasants

LONDON, Feb. 9.—It seems cometimes as if music critics and other highbrows had driven opera out of the opera house and onto tha concert stago. Opera is still given, of course, at the Met and Covent Garden and other august institutions; but throughout this century attention has shifted from the singers to conductors, stage directors and scenery designers. Singers are expected to mind their dotted notes, refrain from the prolongation of high tones, let conductors determine their tempi and phrasing and, above all else, not Everyone, on both sides of the footlights, is reverent and well-behaved. At Covent Garden the custom of maintaining silence between the movements of sonatas and symphonies, now, distressingly, universal, has even been extended to maintaining silence after the big numbers of such an opera as "Il Trovatore." Someone who but hand to hand after Martina Arroyo's "Amor sull'ali rosee" the other night was denounced by one of the critics next day as a brute.

Now, as every opera buff knows, that's not what opera is all about, and it never has been What opera is about is singing, and a special approach to a special kind of singing at that And so, in New York, the American Opera Society and, in London, the London Opera Society, have taken to putting on singers' operas in concert form, getting the hest singers available and giving them free rein and free voice.

The Audience

The audience for such occasions is a community of enthusiasts who know the operas, the objectives and the ground rules. When Carlo Bergonzi reached the end of his "Improvviso" in the London Opera Society's "Andrea Chenier" at the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, last night, extending his final phrases in a fashion impermissible today in any theater outside Italy, Spain or South America, everyone knaw that the house would come down. And down it came.

Thus it went all evening, to the delight of this aficionados and the dismay of those who regard an "Andrea Chenier," in the words of a critic friend of mine, as "the lowest form of art." Sherrill Milnes, as Gerard, brought the house down with his "Nemico della patria"; Angeles Gulin, the new Spanish soprano making her London debut, brought most of it down with "La mamma morte," and she and Bergonzi brought all of it down again with their "Viva la morte: at the close of the opera.

How one reacts to "Andrea Chenler" depends upon one's point of view. The highbrows have a point. It is obvious, excessive, overblown, loud and, in its uninhibited and unashamed theatricallty, rather more than a bit vulgar. But when it is done with passion and conviction, with its heroic and centimental perorations poured out by voices of the requisite warmth, metal and stamina, it can be very exciting and, when such an artist as Bergonzi is at work, very moving.

This was such a performance. I have heard most of the great Cheniers of this century, and would now number Bergonzi among them. His voice is not so silvery as Gigli's, so sensual as Lauri-Volpi's, so resonant as Martinelli's or so overpowering as De Muro's, but it has plenty of oli these virtues, and he sings with as much heart and with more taste than any of them. Milnes could have held his own with the great Gerards of the past, and probably then some. Gulin, singing her first Maddalens, tends to overdrive rather than go into overdrive for the hig passages as Ponselle, Music and Rethberg used to do. She has great premise.

Not least responsible for the auccess of the evening was Anton Guadagno, a conductor who knows a great singer when he hears one, and gives him credit for knowing how to build an aris or monologue and how to shape the phrases to achieve the structure. Watching him actually follow and support Bergonzi was one of the memorable pleasures of a memorable evening.

group issued a report oo dis-crimination of women in the faculty, a bias that it says includes under-hiring as well as the habit of keeping women Ph.D's as part-time lectures when men who teach half-time and work as consultants else, where can hold professorial status. "We must begin organizing working women women in iae. working women in ise-tories, office workers," Kabs Millet says. "It's hard to get so many women to realize they's being paid so little because they've been fed the nonsense. "It's your pin money." For a widow with four hids or a wellwidow with four kids or e wonan whose bushand makes too little, it's not pin money. Its greeery money."

Marriage

If women are to become the equals of men at work, it follows that they will also have to be liberated from the archaic traditions of marriage, which include not only the exclusive burden of domestic chores but the que releating pressure on the bright est, most attractive girls to get married.

"Many women will opt out d the family circle into living without marriage, occasionally with men. occasionally without them." Pamela Roby predicts in the "70s. "More and more it will be recognized that non-more be recognized that non-marriag is a visible and satisfying alter native to marriage for both me and women."

"Homosexuality may be on viable alternative," Robin Ma

gan suggests.

Miss Morgan, who cares to her 6-month-old son, Blake, a the mornings while her busing is at his office and then gos off to her editing job after it returns at 1 p.m. thinks the withering away of the institutions of marriage and family has already begun. Off out of two families will have someone in the hospital this year! It could be you—or some beloved member of your family—tomorrow...next week...next month. Sad to say, very few families have snywhere near enough coverage to meet to-day's soaring hospital costs. These costs have doubled in just a few short years. They are expected to double again in the few years shead.

Stop for a moment. Think how much a long stay in the hospital will cost you or a loved one. How would you ever pay for costly, but necessary, X-rays, doctor bills, drugs and medicines? What would you do if your pay check stopped, but living expenses kept going on the same as ever? The same rent, phone, food, all the day-to-day expenses that never stop.

What is the average breadwinner to do? We believe we have the answer in the famous Extra Cash Plan that Pays you $400.00-a-month tax-free cash whenever you are hospitalized.

What a blessing it is when you know you have an extra $400.00 cash coming in every month when you go to the hospital.

65 OR OVER? YOU COLLECT IN ADDITION TO MEDICARE BENEFITS

We have designed this Plan as the important addition to whatever is paid by Medicare—or health insurance you may have with any other companies. Remember, all checks will be sent directly to you (not to the doctor or hospital), to give you that "extra" help just when you need it most. Use the tax-free cash any way you see fit. And you will be glad to know the checks will be big ones! In addition to any benefits you may receive from Medicare, National Home pays you $200.00 a month for the first 3 months, and a full $400.00 monthly while hospispouse receives not $400.00 but $800.00 a month. That's $1,600.00 in all, in cush payments to you every month (when under age 65) starting the day you enter the hospital for as long as you both remain there.

We can never cancel your Policy!

You can count on this wonderful protection no matter how old you get or how many times you collect from us. Your Policy guarantees that we cannot cancel your protection after you've made a lot of claims, or become old—or for any other reason whatsoever, it is Guaranteed Renewable For Life!

Paysyou $400.00-a-month cush Maternity Benefits!

Ordinary hospital insurance may take care of part of your expenses when you go to the hospital to have a baby. But what policy can you think of that gives you cash to help buy all the things you need for the new baby? Now, if both husband and wife are insured for the entire pregnancy and have added Coverage for Children and Maternity Benefits to the basic Plan, you get chare cash to use any way you want. If a pregnancy, childbirth or even miscarriage puts you in the hospital for one day, five days, 10 days—as long as necessary—you are paid for every day of your confinement at the rate of $400.00 a month.

Added cash benefit: Up to $2,000.00 cash for accidental loss of limbs or eyesight, when the loss occurs anytime within 90 days of the accident. The loss of a limb or eyesight is terrible. Nothing can replace the loss, but a $1,000.00 or $2,000.00 check helps bring peace of mind during the period of adjustment.

Added cash benefit: Choose Coverage for Children (with or without Maternity Benefits) and all your dependent, unmarried children from age one month through 13 years will be covered, too! National Home pays at the rate of $240.00 a month, when your youngster is hospitalized ... for removal of tonsils, appendix or any other illness or injury. Yes, you will receive $240.00 a month cash, month after month for as long as the child is in the hospital. the child is in the hospital.

talized thereafter . . . even for life, if necessary!

And that's not all. Suppose you have a growing family—this Plan (NH-10-669) . . .

All these added cash benefits.

Added cash benefit: Pays as much as $4,800.00 cash for a Registered Nurse at home. You collect an extra $400.00 A MONTH when your doctor has you employ a full-time Registered Nurse within 5 days after you come home, following a stay in the hospital of five days or more for which benefits were payable. Your benefits continue for the same number of days that you

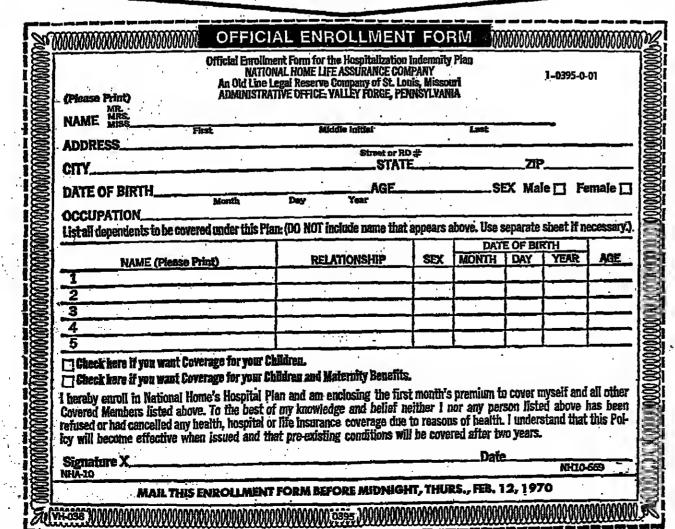

We pay your premiums when you are not able.

Should you—the person to whom the basic Policy is issued—be hospitalized for 8 weeks or more, National Health Plan WILL. PAY ALL PREMIUMS THAT COME FOR YOU AND ALL COVERED MEMBERS OF YOUR FAMILY WHILE YOU ARE CONFINED TO THE HOSPITAL BEYOND THE INITIAL 8-WEEK PERIOD. And your protection continues just the same as if you were paying the premiums yourself in the same as if you were paying the premiums yourself in the same condition before you have resumed full normal activities for 90 days, we will again PAY ANY PREMIUMS WHILE YOU ARE IN THE HOSPITAL—for the total confinement! This means you pay no premiums, yet your full protection remains in force.

HERE'S ALL YOU DO TO RECEIVE YOUR POLICY:

This last item is a real help if you already have a health problem. If you are sick before you take out this Policy, you will even be covered for that condition after the Policy has been to extend for a page Manuschile of course, every new condition. THESE IMPORTANT QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Tell you how National Home's EXTRA CASH HOSPITAL PLAN gives you the protection you weed-at amazinaly law cost!

1. How much will my Policy pay me when I go to the hospital? $400.00 per month. If you're over 65, you collect on top of any Medicare benefits. $200.00 a month for the first 3 months, and $400.00 monthly while you remain continuously hospitalized afterwards. You collect cosh not just for yourself, but for all Covered Members of your family when they are hospitalized! And you collect cosh even if you're in the hospital for only one

2. When do I collect $2,000.00 extra cash for accidental We pay you $1,000.00 extra cash for complete accidental loss of one hand or one foot or sight of one eye, and $2,000.00 extra cash for loss of both hands or both feet or sight of both eyes—even if the loss occurs as long as 3 months after the accident.

3. Suppose I am paid benefits for any sickness or accident. What happens if I am again hospitalized for the same condition? Don't worry! You still collect the regular cash banefits provided by your Policy for as long as your confinement lasts.

4. Will you pay me $400.00-a-month cash—aven for pregnancy! Yesi Many health plans don't cower pregnancy. But we do, when Coverago for Children and Maternity Benefits are added to the hasic Plan. You collect cash benefits for pregnancy, childbirth or miscarriage that results in a hospital stay, (both porants have to be enrolled in this Plan for entire pregnancy period.)

5. Do you pay me cash when my children go to the hospital? Will any children we have in the future he protected, too? any children we have it the justice he protected, too:
You collect $240.00-a-month cash any time your child goes in the hespital, when Coverage for Children is added to the basic.
Plan...each time any dependent, unmartied child (age 1 month through 18 years) is in the hospital for sickness or injury. And if you have a growing family—as soon as your newborn child is one month old, he, too, is covered—automatically ...at no additional cost to you.

6. Are there times I might collect as much as $1,600.00 a month? There are! Remember, we pay cash not just for you but for every Covered Member of your family. National Health Plan Members get an Extraordinary Douele-Cash Benefit. If you and your covered spouse are both in an accident and go to the hospital at the same time, you receive $1.600.00-a-month textine cash (when under age 65). This amount is paid for as long as both of you remain in the hospital-even for life!

Am r ever allowed to stop paying premiums duri in the hospital—yet still remain fully covered? Yes, you are! Should you—the person to whom the basic Policy is issued—be hospitalized for 8 weeks or more, National Health Plan will pay all premiums that come due for you and all covered Members of your family while you are confined to the hospital beyond the initial 8-week period. You aren't expected to pay us back either.

8. How do I go about submitting a claim?

We invite you to contact Cash Benefits Headquarters direct. Whether you want to submit a claim, or just ask us a question, don't hesitate to contact us. As a National Health Plan Member, you are entitled to prompt, courteous and direct attention at all times... and you will get it.

9. Does this Plan pay in any hospital? You will be covered in any duly authorized bospital of your choics snywhere in the world, except a U.S. Government hospital, or a nursing or convalencent facility.

10. Now tell me what's the "cabh"—what doesn't my Policy cover? Set ready for a welcome surprise. Your Policy covers everything except conditions caused by: act of war; any mental disease or disorder; pregnancy, except as provided under the Maternity Benefit provision; and any sickness or injury you had before the Effective Date of your Policy—but area this fast "exclusion" is done away with after you've been a policycomer for only two years. Everything also is definitely covered.

11. What are the requirements to smroll in this Extra Cash Hospitel Plan?

You must not have been rofused or had cancelled any health, hospital or life insurance due to reasons of health; and, to qualify during this Enrollment Period—you must enroll before midnight of the date shown on the Enrollment Form.

12. Besides saving money—are there any other advantages of Johning the National Health Plan during this Enrollment Period? Yes. A very important one is that you don't need to complete a lengthy, detailed application—just the brief Enrollment Form in the corner of this page. Also, during this Enrollment Form in there are no extra requirements for eligibility, and no "walkers" or restrictive endorsements can be put on your Policy!

Fill out the brief Euroliment Form and send it, vie Air Mail, with just 25¢ in U.S. currency for the first month's protection for your entire family. Mail to: National Health Plan, Valley Forgs, Pz. 19481, U.S.A.

Secretary Rogers' Safari

The phrase most frequently used to describe the journey of Secretary of State Rogers to Africa is "low-keyed." And it is appropriate because American foreign policy with respect to Africa is itself low-keyed, and has been for most of the nation's history. In fact, the United States, with some dramatic exceptions, has been less deeply involved in Africa than in any of the other continents, not excluding Australia and Antarctica

This fact is not without its frony, since it was from Africa that the United States has drawn a tenth or more of its population, as well as its greatest social problem. To be sure, the first foreign expedition of the United States, as well as the real birth of its navy, were by-products of the Barbary wars, and North Africa and Egypt have bulked large in recent military and diplomatic activity. The United States was instrumental in launching Liberia as an indigenous modern state, and this country took part more than a century ago, in trying to eradicate slaving along the West African coast, as well as in the latter-day complex United Nations operations surrounding the birth of Kinshasa-Congo.

But, in general, the United States has observed a benevolent alcomess from the ferment of the new Africa, just as it took no part in the older imperialism that carved up that coutinent. There was never an "open door" policy enunciated from Washington concerning Africa, and the withdrawal of American forces from Libya winds up what was, at most, a peripheral strategic concern. Moreover, the emphasis by President Nixon and Mr. Rogers on the low key of the present tour indicates no change in North Africa is, of course, inseparable from the Mideast tangle (as are Egypt and the Sudan) and from the questions posed by Soviet penetration into the Mediterranean. The United States cannot be wholly unconcerned with the fate of new nations struggling to attain a national character and the elements of statehood; it obviously is not completely divorced from the conflict between Black Africa and Rhodesia, South Africa and Portugal, But Washington has, rather consistently, avoided any effort at hegemony, or special responsibility, in the complex issues arising south of the Sahara, and is still seeking to reach accommodation with the lands to the north.

This is no guarantee that involvement may not be forced upon the United States; it is an assurance that America is not seeking such involvement. Aid, under such conditions, is possible without the implication of any more positive (or negative) association. and it is possible that Africa may be the model for the kind of approach that Mr. Nixon foresees for American foreign policy as a whole. Certainly it is one that will find a welcome among many, many Ameri-

Explosive Stalemate

Israel's immediate neighbors meet m Cairo to discuss their troubled borders. Israel's prime minister deplores the threegeneration war her country has wagedand apparently sees no happy outcome. The United States and the Soviet Union trade charges of abetting aggression and calculate the extent to which they can-or must-aid the protagonists. Red China injects an unexpected note of support for Nasser. France becomes bogged down in the simple arithmetic of a sale of military planes. And, meanwhile, men die as lonely individuals or in little groups around Israel's beleaguered perimeter.

To all appearances, it is stalemate. But it is also a potentially explosive stalemate, which could not only lay waste the Middle East but drag in nations from the source of the struggle. And it is one of those situations in which the rights and wrongs seem so clear to the participants that compromise becomes ever more difficult, while those who can view the gray areas of debate with objectivity are powerless to affect the outcome.

For Israel it is a matter of survival, of maintaining that miracle that has been wrought in the desert, that sudden flowering of a nation long dispersed, long persecuted. For the Arabs, it has also become an issue of nationality, and religion, focused on lands which ouce were indisputably occupled by Arabs, even though they had not ruled these lands for centuries. Both sides can muster declarations and resolutions and a host of other documents to sustain their cases; both draw support, for a variety of reasous, from outside their own borders.

It is easy enough to point to the practical fact that Israel's development could be the greatest economic boon that the Middle East has known. Cooperation among the neighbor states there, based on the Israeli example, could mean a better life for the whole region-a better life than an oil-rich sheikhdom, any Arab socialist government, could promise the farmer, the herdsman, in that part of the world.

This might affect the thinking of responsible officials in the Arab lands. But the three-generation war has had its effect upon Arab popular opinion; it has produced new heroes with each defeat, in battle, of the old-line leadership. The rise of the guerrilla movement into this role has produced a new equation; it is no longer a question of the will of any Arab government to make peace, but its ability. This was always true in respect to the Arab armies and the articulate political groups in those countries, and the long war has resulted in the spread of nationalist military government over most of the region. Now, it is possible, these elitist groups have at last attained a strong popular base—a base strong enough to freeze them into anti- kill of Egyptian MiG-21 fighters Israeli attitudes.

The big powers may be wholly unable to on the order of six to ten. alter this grim confrontation. Mideast Cookery

The United States and the other two major Western powers have proposed to the Soviet Union a joint arms embargo for the Middle East. It remains to be seen whether Moscow is any more willing to consider such a proposal now than it has been in the past. It can hardly be eager to give up its chance of keeping the pot simmering. The only sure way of preventing it from boiling over once again would be for the Soviets to stop fanning the flames.

As long as Soviet diplomacy insists on demanding not only an Israeli withdrawal from the occupied territories (which is also called for by America), but an unconditional and complete withdrawal, and as long as Moscow reinforces Arab opposition to negotiations by its continued arms deliveries. there can be no easing of Middle Eastern

European Conservation

The European Conservation Year conference at Strasbourg this week will do a good deal of preaching to the converted. Yet it would be premature to say that we are all conservationists now.

What the European conservation campaign has to do now is to convince politicians, administrators, industrialists, farmers and consumers that certain standards, backed up by controls and international agreements, must be adopted and soon

This week's conference will produce a shoal of recommendations to governments, many of them seemingly plous exhortations, and some in the dry-as-dust prose of the drafter of laws. The conference, therefore, may look to be barren of any suitably glamorous outcome. But that is how it must be: no easy answers, but a long slog.

The episode would be a mite ridiculous, and therefore hardly worth recording, except that it may perhans foretell an American political problem as painful as any this country has known. The problem can arise from the increasing Soviet threat to Israel.

The Soviet military airlift to Egypt has recently been tripled or quadrupled for a period of several weeks. The most hopeful forecast is that the Soviets have merely sent the Egyptians great numbers of additional anti-sircraft guns, in order to increase the risk of Israel's deep air penetrations of Egyptian

This is the Israeli view. The wiser Americans instead believe that the Soviets have been giving the Egyptians both anti-aircraft guns and their most advanced antiaircraft missiles, the SAM-3s, Worse still, the same Americans very strongly suspect that Soviet crews will man the SAM-3s, and that Russians will also begin to play a much larger role in the whole Egyptian sir defense system.

SAM Kill Ratio

Nor is this altogether surprising. The earlier model Soviet missiles, is well established that the SAM-2 general is low. has been far more impressive-

It can be seen, then, why a lot more Russian technicians, for the might well be thought to be essential. But ironical as the facts may seem on the surface, they are the very opposite of a laughing matter. Looking down the road the possibility of the most ghastly kind of tragedy is very clear in-

Because they are so few in number, the Israelis cannot possibly tolerate Gamal Abdel Nasser's "war of attrition." The purpose of the deep air penetrations is to stop war of attrition-either by weakening Nasser's own position, or by forcing the reinstatement of the UN cease-fire which Nasser was the first to breach. of power, its aggressions and its challenge to

Choice for Israel

Hence the new step which the Soviets have quite probably taken will bring appreciably nearer the need for an Israeli choice of the most dreadful kind. One alternapreventive attack on Egypt, of the sort long advocated by Gen. Ezer with a high resulting chance of full-scale intervention. The other alternative will be to tolerate step-by-step increases in Soviet' direct support for Egypt, until perhaps, Soviet pilots in Egyptian-marked planes are flying offensive missions over Sinal or Israel itself. This can too easily be fatal. Present Israeli air suuremacy is a thin crust in fact that now protects Israel from effective by the more numerous Egyptiens.

Here is where one must come back to Prof. Chomsky, and indeed to American policy. What the Soviets do in the Middle East will of course depend on their calcula-tions of risk. Historically, they have always embarked on high-risk ventures when the United States was letting down its guard.

Thus the shiring courage and

The Premise

In short, the reasons go deep into the character of this society and the economic and political direction given by its leaders since the age of reform began in the 19th century. The explanation does not lie in the way suspects are questioned or criminal trials con-

Americans might think about that. For the premise of the Nixon administration and the overwhelming congressional majority now pushing through harsh crime legislation is that "unshackling" the police and prosecutors will substantially alleviate the appalling American crime problem. That is the justification for cutting so hard into the established rights of defendants, as detailed by Tom Wicker in this space.

One does not have to admire everything the Supreme Court has done by way of judicializing the criminal law to see that undoing the court's decisions will not solve the crime problem. Take the restraints on confessions, which are most bitterly attacked by the police and prosecutors. Professor James Vorenberg of the Harvard Law School, whom some liberals consider a hard-liner, has shown how little relevance the confession issue

But that raises the whole que tion of relations between the black and white communities—of welfare reform, of education, of employment, of housing. It is infinitely more difficult for a senator to face up to these dilemmas, and vote with any confidence for a solution, than it is to vote for a bill labeled anti-crime. But in the long run a bitter, divided society is not likely to be law-abid-

Dangerous Pretense

Pretending that there are easy ways to solve the American crime problem is not only foolish but dangerous. When the public is told that all will be well if only the police and the government get tough and push aside the obstacles not well, what will the reaction be?

It could be to demand even harsher police measures, in the belief that at some point dealing with the external manifestations and confessions are essential to of social illness will work. Worst of Worlds for U.S.?

The ABM and China

By Stephen S. Rosenfeld

hence to calm those alarmed by country's anti-missile defenses against a possible intercontinental strike by the Chinese.

For, if the President is to be taken at his word, he is projecting a very different and more hostile kind of relationship with China than he anticipates with Russia, and he is greatly complicating, at the least, his stated aim of improving relations with Peking.

He may, in fact, he proceeding toward one of the worst of pos-sible worlds, in which the United States would have bad relations with Peking-with the attendant anxiety, cost and risk—and no com-pensating effective defense against China's nuclear reach.

On March 14, 1969, when Mr. Nixon announced his ABM plans, he stated that one purpose of the Safeguard system was defense against China: this he reaffirmed in his news conference Jan. 31. He had said Safeguard would give "substantial protection" against China: this too he reaffirmed, while upgrading Safeguard—at least semantically—to the level of "virtually infallible."

Last week, however, Mr. Nixon took two extra steps. He announced the physical extension of the anti-China ABM and he endowed it publicly with a new rationale. Therein the dangers lie.

Last year Mr. Nixon promised that "each [ABM] phase will be reviewed to insure that we are doing as much as necessary but no more than required by the threat existing at that time . . . Our deployment is to be clos related to the threat." But despite this specific promise, Mr. Nixon has not now produced or claimed evidence, or even flatly claimed, that the Chinese threat has changed. People who watch China closely detect no change.

Response to Myths?

Why then is the President act-ig? One conceivable answer is that he is in cahoots with the Russians to keep China down. Certainly the Chinese will suspect so. Another possible answer is that Mr. Nixon has been making policy uot out of an orderly assessment of new realities but out of an instinctive response to old myths here the myth of implacable Com-munist, particularly Chinese, fanaticism. Certainly many Americans

There is, however, a third answer arising from the ABM rationale newly advanced by Mr. Nixon, Last year he spoke of the "defense of the American people," a purpose which, taken at face value, is reasonable, desirable and unprovocative. But last Friday be declared "that the expanded ABM gives the U.S. a credible foreign policy in the Pacific area which it otherwise would not have." This is an extra to China

WASHINGTON.—It will take a dimension. It is the difference be-iot more than the promised tween protecting the homeland explanation of "details" 30 days from Chinese attack (as one would protect against an accidental President Nixon's announcement launching—the two are oftent that he intends to beel up the spoken of in the same breath. and projecting American power around the rim of China. The first is unexceptionable. The second raises questions about future American policy. Some of these were answered by Mr. Nixon at his press conference. "It will be very important," he said. "for the U.S. to have some kind of defense so that nuclear blackmail would not be used against the U.S. or against those nations like the Philippines with which the U.S. is allied in the Pacific, not to mention Japan." There is the "defense against nucleu nub: blackmail" What does that mean?

First-Strike Policy No military progress the Chinese could conceivably make in the attacking and destroying China at will. That is the existing and proper in the property of the control of determing Chinese attack. Preparing to belk "nuclear blackmail," however, can only indicate that Mr. Ham. hopes to deny China the ability in strike back. With Russia, America accepts a condition of mutual deterrence. With Chins, evident. ly, America alone will be able to deter: China will not be able to deter America because its ADM will spare the country fear of a Chinesi strike. Thus will the United States keep the first-strike capability it has held against Peking all along. The rationale behind the intionale, so to speak, is the "Nime Doctrine." This calls on asian friends to provide their own first lines of defense, while Washington hoists a nuclear umbrella over their heads. In strategic terms, the doctrine returns the United States from "flexible response" to "may, sive retaliation," with most in between "flexible" steps left to in

As a theory this is logical, but as a guide to policy it is dubing. Even if the ABM is "virtually infallible" against ICBMs (the Nixon claim), what about boat in mine-launched missiles? Whit about "virtually"? An ABM will holes may reduce casualties but an smother an attack, and in the case, its value as an arm of America ican foreign policy declines one respondingly. An ABM that dots not neutralize China's missiles h flawed militarily; one that dock his flawed politically, since it will increase China's fears.

Sociology as I understand it is the study, history, development, orga-nisation and problems of people living together as social groups. It is social science Mr. Edwards is the man who led a militant group in an effort to force Negro athletes to boycott the United States Olympic team in 1968. His reputation and record as a race baiter, social agitator and professional troublemaker are nationally known, Yet this social disrupter is being hired to teach sociology at the country's largest university in our country's largest

Dr. Heyns is right, Mr. Edwards' contribution to the university's educational program will be strong. It will be strong in controversy and disruption, strong in inviting unnecessary trouble and strong in insulting the intelligence of the responsible citizens and taxpeyers of the state of California.

Capital Gains have been made every year for the past 150 years by purchasing raw Scotch Whisky, owning it while it matures in Government Bond, then selling. Send One Dollar for the publication explaining this little-known method by which fortunes have been, and are being, made. OXFORD PRESS (Scotland)

$10,000 returned $14,700 in two years.

You could do better,

but the odds are against it.

While the average American mutual fund gained 1%, United Grawth Fund rose 47 %. But U.G.F. is not designed for quick, speculative gains. It is an International fund that seeks lang-term capital grawth. U.G.F. management combines the advantages of real estate holdings and corporate securities. And because there is no sales charge, your capital gaes to work immediately. Try it. It won't cost you anything. The odds are with you.

BLONDIE SUMSTEAD! HE JUSTATE IT I WONDER WHAT HIS SUGGESTION WAS? AND RAN!

BRIDGE-

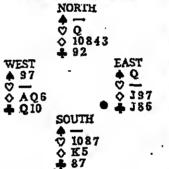

By Alan Truscott

Most experts regard a double of a three-bid as primarily for take-out. But matters are much more difficult at the four-level. Whether to pass the double for penalties or bid a suit at such an elevated level may be sheer guesswork. Experts will often guess wrong, and did so on the diagramed deal

Some players would open the South hand with one beart, fearing to miss a slam by preempting. But on balance the danger of missing slam is less significant than the advantage to be gained by putting pressure on West with a pre-emptive bid, and South opened four hearts. West had no choice but to double, leaving East to make a decision. With a five-card spade suit and a void in hearts he should perhaps have opted for four spades, a contract that would have been made with an overtrick as the cards lie, but he was tempted by the vulnerability into passing. South ruffed the opening lead of the spade king, cashed the heart ace, and surrendered a trick to West's trump king. West played the spade ace, and South ruffed again, led to the club king in dummy, and ruffed dummy's last spade.

The position was now this: NORTH

South led the club are, hoping for a throw-in, but West avoided the trap by dropping his club queen. On the club continuation East was able to overtake his partner's ten with the jack and lead a diamond to defeat the contract.

successful.

DESPITE the technical complexities of the recent lunar landings, the mystique of flight remains undiminished 66 years after Orville Wright managed his mere 120 feet of powered flight.

Mystique or no, it is still difficult to comprehend what drove the early aeronauts to attempt feats which most often won them the contempt and ricicule of their countrymen. The London Times in 1906 was of the opinion that all attempts at artificial aviation . . are not only dangerous to human life but foredoomed to failure. . . . Less than a dozen newspapers bothered even to report the Wright brothers' astounding accomp ishment, and those that did bother were openly skeptical of its importance.

It is in this context of public apathy and scorn that Henry Villard begins his chronicle of the decade from man's first flight to World War I. His interest in early aviation was nurtured by his personal ac-quaintances, many of whom are early aviation's most legendary personages.

The first of the book's excellent photographs (many from the author's personal collection) shows Villard preparing for : first flight. Adventure is in the air: he is seated in an ancient biplane piloted by a musta-chiced and begoggled gentleman who bears striking resemblance to Sgt. Pepper. But if Villard was excited from the early days, the United States was not. While we were obsessed with the motorcar, it was left to the French to sense the potential of flight. Finally, three years after Kitty Hawk the French got off the ground and thereafter, stirred by the feats of such men as Farman, Santos-Dumont and the Voisin brothers, races began to ! .

flown for substantial cash prizes.

As the machines became to some degree perfected, racing gave way to distance and endurance flights. Villard gives a fascinating detailed account of the first Channel crossing to be sponsored by the London Daily Mail. (Won by Blériot: an earlier attempt to cross the Channel was made by Hubert Latham, who smoked cigarettes which reportedly contained marijuans to bolster his courage)

While the Europeans continued to master the art of flight, and improve its techpology, the Americans confined their interest almost exclusively to barnstorming and stunt flying in outmoded machines. When a list was compiled in 1911 of all men who were known to have flown, only 31 of 729 names belonged to Americans. But one of those names belonged to Calbraith Perry Rodgers (a descendant Commodore Perry), who flew 4,321 miles, from coast to coast, leaving in his wake nearly 70 crash landings. (Only his plane's rudder and one strut were undamaged at trip's end.) As a crunterpoint to the con-

--The British 'Coco'

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP) .-Clandette Colbert will play the title role in the London produc-tion of "Coco." the Broadway musical hit based on the life of French stylist Gabrielle Chanel, producer Frederick Brisson told a Daily News reporter vesterday.

He added that Lilli Palmer is coming from Europe to New York in March to talk about taking over from star Katharine Hepburn in the Broadway pro-attorney general but he said when three people are kid-napped in a bank robbery, my first obligation is to the courts." "Three people were kidnapped?" "I wasn't supposed to tell you that. If you print it, I'll be held in contempt."

Good grief. Kelly, your loyalties are to the paper. What happened?"

"It's no good, Jordan. Even if I told you the bank manager's wife's boyfriend is believed to have engineered the robbery. I'd be in dutch,"

of him coming out of the bank with the money in one hand and the wife of the bank manager on his other arm. They escaped on top of a Greyhound

"Where are the photos?"

"The cops took them as evideuce. They also arrested Jerry for being at the scene of a crime. I would have gone to his aid, but I heard over the police radio that the Grevhound bus had been stopped at a roadblock, so I rushed over there just as the cops were climbing on the hus to make the arrests."

"They got the people who heisted the bank?"

"I can't tell you that." "Kelly, please Kelly. We go to press in an hour. Were they arrested?" "I'm not at liberty to divulge any facts other than to say that the explosions I heard going on for over an hour did not come from the exhaust pipe of the bus." "For God's sakes. Kelly, give me anything—the name of the bank-anything.

"I'm sorry, Jordan, I probably should not even have called in." "Where the devil are you?"

"Down here at the Justice Department. They let me make one phone call." "Have you been arrested, too?" "Not exactly, but the Justice Department said that without influencing what I wrote, they were holding me as a material witness until the final edition of our paper hits the stand."

"I'll get you out. Kelly." "I might as well stay here. I have to testify in the Morgan hijacking case that I covered 'Archaeology Is Not a Science, It's a Vendetta'

Boston's Golden Hoard Stirs a Tempest

By Alfred Friendly

ONDON IWPI-The astonishing acquisition of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts-22 pounds of solid gold, very ancient, Near Eastern artifacts-is beautiful, dazzling, fascinating and unique. And, in the opinion of archaeologists here, academically valueless. The British experts are, in general, outraged at the museum's acceptance of the gold hoard because neither the donor, Boston broker Landon T. Clay, nor the museum itself will disclose the origin in anything but the most general terms, useless for scholarly purposes, Accordingly, experts here feel it is:

Of no value in advancing the scientific knowledge about the peoples, skills and culture of the makers:

• An invitation to every country in the Eastern Mediterranean to penalize future archeological expeditions out of anger that the treasure may have been illegally smuggled from their shores;

• A misleading hodge-podge of incongruous objects, some remote from others by a factor of a thousand years and a thousand miles, which, presented as if a single find, dreadfully confuses instead of enlightens.

The treasure, consisting of 137 pieces of 18-karat gold jewelry, is only the fourth such assemblage to come to light. The first was the greatest, the treasure of Troy discovered by Heinrich Schliemann in 1873, displayed in Berlin, seized by the Russians in World War II and Treasure, viewed and sketched only by the British excavator James Mellaart, in 1958 in Izmir, Turkey. It too has disappeared and Mr. Mellaart, very probably the victim of a frame-up, has been barred ever since from continuing work in Turkey.

The second was the so-called Dorak

The third was a collection obtained hy the University of Pennsylvania, also the subject of controversy because of madequate knowledge of its origin.

Turned Down?

The Boston Museum collection was purchased by Mr. Clay for a figure reported in excess of $100,000. It-or something very much like it-is believed to hava been offered for sale here, in Berlin and in Switzerland, but turned down, again for lack of information about the provenance

It is said to have been offered in the United States by owners in Zurich, It was seen and its importance recognized by Dr. Emily Vermuele, of Harvard University, one of the most respected and learned figures in American archaeologi-

She described the treasure to American archaeologists at their last annual meeting at the turn of the year. She categorically denied that it was the Dorak find—as has Mr. Mellaart on the basis of photographs shown to him here-and would say only that it came from a tomb in the "Eastern Mediterranean." That could be anywhere from Syria to Sicily. Some of the objects themselves however-such as the golden spirals on bracelets and studs—are reminiscent of work as far east as Mesopotamia. In giving only the most general and inclusive clue as to origin, Dr. Vermnele and the museum doubtless thought to avoid angering any particular country in the area. All of them, of course, have strict prohibitions against the unauthorized exports of antiquities.

In fact, however, tha too-general ex-planation may raise suspicions in all of them, it is felt here, with the result that it will be even harder than it is now-and it is dreadfully difficult already for Western archaeological expeditions to obtain licenses to excavate.

The Rumor

In British circles, the rumor is insistent almost to the point of certainty that the hoard came from Turkey-from Cilicia, to be exact, the ancient province on the southeast coast. Of all nations, Turkey is the most sensitive about the smuggling of its treasures, being the most vulnerable as well as the most renophobic and, in modern times, the most sinned

Without knowledge of either the location or the circumstances of the find, the materials therefrom-however lovely to look at-are useless to a scholar, telling him nothing. From the finest piece in the collection, a solid gold cylinder seal most exquisitely crafted, quite a blt can be ascertained, however. It is obviously Egyptian and appears to have belonged to an official at the courts of two Fifth Dynasty pharachs ruling between 2497 and 2450 B.C. The implication is that it provides a clue to the date of the other material.

That, however, is a very filmsy or dubious implication. No proof-only someone's word-is adduced that the seal was found in the alleged tomb collection. Even if it had been, it would mean nothing, for as early as the third millennium there were "antique collectors"men of wealth or stature who had foreign rarities, coming to their possession by very long trading paths, buried with their funeral goods.

Moreover, it is as near certain as anything can be in the present state of knowledge that the lion-headed bracelet is an Iron Age product and not, as the rest of the collection is supposed to be, from the Bronze Age. That is, the bracelet is similar to material made in the Near East in about the eighth or ninth centuries B.C. Most of the rest of the collectionbracelets, stude, necklaces, pendants, etc. -cannot be precisely dated either. To judge from other finds made over the years, most of these pieces are from the early or late Bronze Ages, as asserted, but very much the same sort of jewelry has since been found in Iron Age troves. The suspicion here is strong that the items were not found in a single trove. but were assembled from many sources by modern dealers.

There is the outside chance-not probable but not to be ruled out entirelythat one or more of the items is faked. There are no scientific tests that can resolve the question, one way or the other.

Perhaps the dim view that the British archaeologists take of the Boston Museum's acquisition should be discounted. They have based their judgment mostly on the photographs alone—unless what was offered a few years ago to the British Museum, and rejected by it, was the same thing. Further, as the quotation from the dean of British archaeologists, "Archaeology is not a science, it's a vendetta." makes clear, the practitioners of the science are not noted for their goodwill one toward another.

Finally, it must be repeated that the scholarliness and integrity of Dr. Ver-muele weigh heavily to validate the worth and integrity of the collection. She may well possess all the facts that would convert what is now an object of dubiety into something as valuable to archaeological knowledge and as pure as the very gold of which it is comprised—but she may be stopped for the time being from disclosing them Yet, as matters now stand, one is kept condering just what the hell those beautiful things really are.

Grotesque Forgery

ATHENS, Peb. 9 (NYT) -A top Greek expert on prehistoric antiquity has brand-ed as a forgery the 137-piece gold treas-ure, said to be 4,000 years old, that has been put on display at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, Spyridon Marinatos, inspector general of Greece's Archaeological Services, after studying published pictures of main objects in the collection, said in an interview: "In my humble, personal opinion, this is a grotesqua forgery." Cornelius Vermuele, curator of classical arts at the Boston Museum, replied: "I have a great admiration for Professor Marinatos. My respect for him as a scholar is unbounded.

"I respectfully feel that when he has had an opportunity to examine the find at the Boston Museum, he will concur that whatever the origins of the jewelry, wherever it was found, it is not a forgery.

PEOPLE:

"I definitely am not dead," 72year-old film fixture Andy Devine rumbled in a recent interview in Hollywood. "There's a certain group of character actors who come from the same era of movies that the public gets confused. Smiley Burnett and Stu Erwin were a couple. But there are others. When one of them dies, my wife, Dorothy. gets letters and cards of condolence. Some telephone to express their sympathy. Once in a while I answer the phone and the person on the other end of the line almost swallows his teeth when he hears my voice. thinking I am dead." Patterson said he heard a slot machine being played in the corridor of the ancient and shut - down - for - the-night building. He immediately thought of the legend of a ghost of a man robbed and murdered in the pub 100 years ago. (The pub has been open the same stand since the 18th century.) He went to inspect the slot machine and found 5 shillings (60 cents) of winnings in the tray. Patterson pocketed the coins.
